Headline:
Scattered showers tonight. Drier with sunshine on Monday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Largely dry across the region, any lingering showers should be confined to the south, clear spells elsewhere. Remaining breezy overnight and this should stop temperatures falling too low. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Monday:
Monday mostly dry with plenty of sunny spells, although a slight chance of the odd shower during the day. A band of rain arriving overnight and spreading eastwards. Wind easing. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Early morning rain on Tuesday moving eastwards and clearing by mid-afternoon, leaving a dry day with sunny spells. Wednesday continuing dry with sunny spells. Cloudier by Thursday. Temperatures mostly mild.
